I walk, I walked, I used to walk, I have walked, I had walked, I will have walked, I would have walked, he hopes I walk, he hopes I walked, I will walk, I would walk, I was walking. This is easy to do for an English speaker in English, but not so easy when learning a foreign language like Spanish. Our students have learned a lot of tenses and tend to mix them up. When the students speak Spanish, they already know the subject they want to use. In this case, I. What they need is to shuffle throughPage 2If you would like to teach or review the homonyms THERE, THEIR, and THEY'RE, this free product is student-ready, neatly-designed, and allows for different styles of guided practice!The THERE-THEIR-THEY'RE Student Ready Review Packet presents each usage explanation along with clear examples and varied practice opportunities. In this lesson, we will learn the basic rules to talk about actions in progress in Spanish through several examples and interactive quizzes. Let's start...The basic structure for the present progressive in SpanishAs we mentioned above, the present progressive tense in Spanish is generally used to talk about actions in progress, that is things you or someone else are doing at the moment of speaking. Unlike simple sentences such as "Yo limpio la casa", which are more appropriate for daily routines, sentences with the present progressive in Spanish will make use of the verb ESTAR and an additional verb. We have covered the irregular verb ESTAR in a previous lesson, so please take some time to check that one if needed. For now, we will assume you have some basic knowledge of the verb ESTAR. Here is the basic structure for sentences in the present progressive in Spanish:As you can see, the verb ESTAR will change depending on the subject of the sentence. If we want to make a similar sentence with a different subject, all we need to do is change the form of ESTAR, e.g. "Yo estoy lavando" or "Nosotros estamos barriendo". Notice that the verbs LAVANDO and BARRIENDO, that are the main verb in the sentences, will keep the same form for all pronouns.How to form the gerund in Spanish: rules and examples!t is time to get into more details about the rules for the gerund in Spanish. We will mention each of the rules and will also show you some examples of sentences using the progressive tense in Spanish. Pay attention to how the ending of each verb should change depending on its original form in infinitive.Spanish verbs ending in -ARWhen verbs end in -AR, we must replace -AR for -ANDO. Here are some examples:JUGAR - Yo estoy jugando.HABLAR - Ella está hablando.Pensar - Nosotros estamos pensando.To think -We are thinking.Spanish verbs ending in -ER and -IRThe gerund form of -ER and -IR ending verbs in Spanish will be the same. Both of them will change to -IENDO. Here are some examplesCOMER - El está comiendo.HACER - Los niños están haciendo la tarea.To do - The children are doing their homework.VIVIR - Estoy viviendo en otra ciudad.To live - I am living in another city.ABRIR - Vos estás abriendo los regalos.To open - You are opening the gifts.Stem-changing verbs and the present progressive in SpanishStem-changing verbs are a special type of verbs that apart from changing their ending, will suffer a change in its stem. For instance, the verb "DORMIR" will be normally conjugated as "Yo duermo", "Tú duermes" and so on for the present tense. Similarly, we will change the stem of the verb for the present progressive tense in Spanish, so we will say "Yo estoy durmiendo", "Tú estás durmiendo" and so on. Here are some more examples:SERVIR - Yo estoy sirviendo la cena.To serve - I am serving dinnerPEDIR - El mendigo está pidiendo en la calle.To ask for - The beggar is begging on the streetDECIR - Te estoy diciendo que no es así.SAY - I'm telling you it's not like that.MORIR - Estoy muriendo de sueño.To die - I'm dying to go to sleepSpelling changes and the present progressive in SpanishSometimes, the gerund form of verbs in Spanish will require a spelling change. That is the case for common verbs such as IR and LEER. IR will totally change to "YENDO", whereas "LEER" will change to "LEYENDO". Here are some more examples:CAER - Está cayendo nieve en las montañas.To fall - Snow is falling in the mountains.OIR - Estamos oyendo el partido.To hear/To listen - We are listening to the game.LEER - ¿Qué estás leyendo? - Estoy leyendo un libro de misterio.To read - What are you reading? - I'm reading a mystery book.Sample conversation using the present progressive in SpanishBefore you test yourself with the grammar quiz in this lesson, take a look at the following short conversation using the present progressive tense in Spanish. It includes some of the verbs that we presented before, as well as some new expressions.Alan: ¿Qué estás haciendo Carlos?Carlos: Estoy estudiando para el examen. ¿Y tú?Alan: Estoy viendo una película ¿Para qué examen estás estudiando?Carlos: Para el examen de español. Estoy leyendo un libro llamado "Don Quijote"Alan: ¿En serio? ¿Es bueno?Carlos: Sí, es bueno. También estoy haciendo tareas de otras clases.Alan: Sigue estudiando. Nos vemos mañana.Carlos: Hasta mañana entonces.Read translation Alan: What are you doing, Carlos? Carlos: I'm studying for the exam. And you? Alan: I'm watching a movie. What exam are you studying for? Carlos: For the Spanish exam. I'm reading a book called "Don Quixote" Alan: Really? It's good? Carlos: Yes, it's good. I am also doing homework from other classes. Alan: Keep studying. See you tomorrow. Carlos: See you tomorrow then.Related Spanish Worksheets:Verbs and Actions in Progress in Spanish - PDF Worksheet
